I was actually born in New Zealand but we migrated in the early '90s. I went to the University of Georgia where I received my B.A. in Political Science & Latin. I have always loved writing since I was young but I never really sat down and wrote until I went to college. Upon graduating I became a freelance editor for the Atlanta Journal Constitution and eventually wrote my first novel which was publishing in 2009. I later left to follow my husband to Oregon and while I was there I completed my M.A. in Communication and my Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology. I finally went back to Georgia in 2015 and am now working as a school psychologist but I don't think I will stay this route very long due to the little kid in me. I can't help but be a writer, a researcher, and a super detective.Q: Why.get() needs.done() in this script? Well, I saw this example: var foo = function () { $.get('server/foo.json', {}, function (data) { //... }); }; $.when(foo()).done(function (a,b,c) { //... }); What's the difference in do this: var foo = function () { $.get('server/foo.json', {}, function (data) {
